ANSWERING ADS: When replying to an article or advertisement appearing in Timber Talk, please mention where you read it.

MR. WOODY: Mr. Woody, Walt Holda, of P. O. Box 468, Sunbury, Pennsylvania, USA 17801 has a list of U. S. wood for sale. If anyone is interested I suggest you drop Mr. Woody a line and enclose SASE.

NICKEL BELT COIN CLUB SHOW - 1969: Mr. Jack Dupont of 463 Notre Dame Ave., Sudbury, Ontario P3C 5K9 advises that he had 1000 wooden nickels struck for the Nickel Belt Coin Club Show held on April 26, 1969. The wood was printed in Santa Monica, California, however 'Sudbury' was spelled 'Sunbury.' As there was not enough time to reorder Jack changed the 'n' to a 'd' and used them. If anyone is interested Jack still has some and he will sell them at 25¢ each plus SASE.

A SHORT HISTORY OF LONDON, ONTARIO

(refer to catalog W/N #500 1)

by Victor Hall

London was not 100 years old in 1955. As we all know, parts of Canada were first inhabited by North American Indians. The remains of an ATTIWANDARIAN fortified village is located on high ground overlooking Medway Creek in northwest London. In 1679 La Salle was fur trading in this area. The north and south branches of the Thames River join in the heart of the city. After the battle of the Plains of Abraham in 1759, French rule in Canada ended, and this area became a closed Indian Territory. The first settlers arrived around 1783, many of them United Empire Loyalists. In 1818 forty families took up land in London at the forks of the Thames River. The Old Court House was completed in 1830, and London was founded. In 1828 London was made Military Headquarters for Upper Canada, a village in 1840, a town in 1848, and a city in 1855. A new Court House was built in 1974 to replace the old structure which is now a historical site.

In 1955, London was not 100 years old, this was the year that London celebrated its centennial as a city. The Canadian Numismatic Association will hold its annual convention in London in 1978. One of the features of this show will be the largest collection of wooden money ever assembled in Canada.
